Drinking water, a right for everyone

We are very proud to announce that actor, director and television host Guy Richer has accepted to become Spokesperson for Wings of Hope and for the cause of access to drinking water in the remote rural communities of Peru.

Loved by the public, the multitasking artist with a warm voice moves easily from lighter to more serious matter. He has also expressed his love of the French language in several magazine articles and through commentaries on the radio.

Another one of his passions is travel, as he loves meeting people and learning about their culture. He has directed and hosted many travel shows on Canal Évasion and TVA. As an actor, Guy Richer has had a much diversified career in cinema and famous television series. In the Trudeau series, broadcasted on CBC, he played the role of Jean Chrétien in English. He also personified dozens of public personalities on Rira Bien on TVA, for which he won a Gémeau* for best actor in a comedy series. He has also hosted informative programs, service programs, game shows, cultural magazines and galas.

We are extremely grateful for Mr. Richer's commitment and wish to thank him on behalf of our Peruvian friends.

A few words from Guy Richer

"Dear donors,

I have had the great pleasure of visiting Peru and discovering its warm and resilient people. Like you, I've been moved by the difficult living conditions of some 7 million Peruvians who don't have access to drinking water, which is an aberration in the 21st century!

What motivated me to get involved in this cause was seeing these people take their future into their own hands. They don't just sit there with their arms crossed, waiting to receive money. To see all these men, women and children join their efforts to bring drinking water to their remote communities is a great example of solidarity and dignity.

Your financial support for their efforts will ensure that lives will be saved, debilitating diseases will be limited, and many young people will be able to hope for a better life to end the infernal circle of poverty.

Your gesture brings hope because water is life".

To tell you more about the cause of drinking water he feels so strongly about, Guy Richer created a fantastic video with his son Antoine which we are encouraging you to watch our web site at ailesdelesperance.org

A new course on water preservation

The 390 students of the Nopoki University Center in Atalaya were divided into three groups for an entirely new course on water preservation in Amazonia. The course was given by two Peruvian water specialists, Andrés Alencastre and Fanel Guevara. A Nopoki teacher called Darinka Pacaya took on the role of course coordinator to ensure the proper development and implementation of the new course. As a prelude to the course, each of the nine ethnic groups attending had to explain what water means to their own culture. Darinka compiled all the information in each language and in Spanish in a notebook that was then distributed to each participant. In the future, most of these students will become teachers in the indigenous schools of the Amazon rainforest.

We are extremely happy about this new course because it will have a long term impact on the lives of nativos (natives) in the region. Several members of the drinking water committees in the villages surrounding Atalaya also attended the class. These communities have expressed deep concern over the increasing contamination of the Amazon waters.

Libro Azul del Perú

Last October 21st, Peru's Libro Azul (Blue Book) was launched in Lima. This Blue Book is the result of a large public consultation under the auspices of the International Secretariat for Water and of the Ministry of Vivienda, Construcción y Saneamiento of Peru. Several bodies of the Peruvian government, as well as representatives from non-profit organizations (NGOs) and civil society, participated in the process for a more efficient and sustainable water management in Peru.

Estefa Quispe from Cuchoquesera has proudly participated in the launch of Libro Azul.

Vladimir Arana of the International Secretariat for Water

Wings of Hope and its Peruvian partner Alas de Esperanza Perú are stakeholders in this project and happy to have made it possible.

The Libro Azul del Perú Committee monitors and implements the recommendations contained in this new tool to improve water management. It is expected that the Ministry of Education of Peru will use Libro Azul in schools and universities.

45 years already

On Sunday, November 20, 2016, Wings of Hope (Québec) Inc. held its 45th Annual General Assembly at MOCHICA's, Martin Oré's Peruvian restaurant on Saint-Denis Street.

After the AGM, in which active members of the corporation took part, representatives of partner organizations joined us for a delicious brunch of fine Peruvian cuisine. We were particularly pleased that Mr. Jean-Guy Couture, one of the six founding members, honoured us with his presence. He was moved and overwhelmed by the vitality of the organization he had helped to set up in 1971.

Inauguration in Yanashi

On February 11, 2017, I boarded a speed boat in Iquitos to go to Yanashi with the Director of Water Mission in Peru, Juan Simon. As soon as we got off the boat, we were warmly welcomed by the villagers who number around 1,600. The drinking water system was being inaugurated and officially handed over to the community by Water Mission, the organization Wings of Hope had contracted out to execute the project.

One 20 liter container with tap

In order to ensure greater viability for the project, it had to be redefined. The one we had initially completed in 2003 suffered a lot of damage because of exceptional floods over the past few years. In this new project, the water pump and the filtration system are powered by solar energy. The water is distributed to the homes by the operator using 20 liter containers equipped with a tap. The users pay half a sol ($0.22 Can) upon reception. The drinking water committee received thorough training and is now responsible for the proper functioning of the drinking water system.

In memory de Mariposa

When in 1998 Marie-Paule Sarrazin went to Peru as a volunteer, she immediately felt a bond with the Peruvian people and that bond never waned. The patients at the Hogar San Pedro had nicknamed her Mariposa, which means butterfly. In 2000, Marie-Paule became a member of Wings of Hope, a position she kept until she passed away in February 2016.

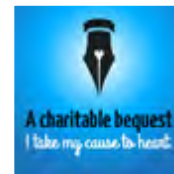

Wanting to prolong her collaboration with the organization, she had taken care of including a donation in her will. Her daughters Marie-Andrée and Brigitte diligently gave the donation to Wings of Hope. In her honour, the drinking water project of the three indigenous communities of the Unini River will be inaugurated on July 16 in memory of Mariposa.

The memory of this amazing woman who always remained young at heart and in spirit is still alive in our organization and the sound of her contagious laughter continues to ring in our ears.

Unini : the project is nearly complete

The Reservoir of the Village of José Olaya

The completion of the drinking water project for the three communities of the Unini River is coming to an end. The workers are just finishing the construction of the 3rd tank and washbasins. Work is scheduled to be completed in April 2017, but the incessant rain may slow down the process. The piping is now firmly suspended over the Machintoni River to reach José-Olaya, the third village.

In Santa Clotilde on the Napo River : the hospital

Santa Clotilde Hospital on the banks of the Napo River

Volunteer doctors and nurses from Canada and the USA took turns to support local personnel at the hospital that has now grown to 40 beds. Small health clinics and dispensaries in the twelve surrounding villages are also serviced by the hospital staff.

Last November, my colleague Annick Delestre and I met with Father Maurice when he visited the Oblate's house in Ottawa. He explained how the increasingly contaminated waters of the Amazon River made the work of healthcare workers more and more difficult.

The priest-doctor Maurice Schroeder, omi, (white polo) and Juan Simon, director of Water Mission Peru with Sisters Ana Laura and Viany

In 1985, two missionaries from the Vicariato apostólico San José del Amazonas, Maurice Schroeder, OMI, MD, and Jack McCarthy, both of them priests and doctors, decided to build a field hospital to meet the critical health needs of the indigenous people of the Napo River, north of Iquitos, in the heart of the Amazonian jungle. Afterwards, Bishop Guibord had the good idea to formalize an agreement with the Ministerio de Salud of Peru, which pledged to defray the salaries of the hospital staff.

We retained the services of Water Mission to develop and install a water purification system for the hospital and its outbuildings. At a later date we'll study the possibility of extending this project to the schools (1,300 pupils) and to the village. Young Mexican nuns have taken over from the Missionary Sisters of Our Lady of the Angels from Lennoxville, Quebec, who have devoted themselves generously to these natives for fifty years.

The cost of the first stage, for the hospital and its dependencies, is $58,000. Counting on your generosity, Wings of Hope agreed to fund this project. Thank you in advance for supporting this initiative for the nativos of Santa Clotilde.
